The Philadelphia Program is a unique experience available to Kalamazoo College students usually in their Sophomore year. It provides opportunities for professional and intellectual development through experience-based and academic learning in an urban context. During the fall quarter program students explore career options and develop strategies and skills for professional growth; find appropriate housing, manage resources and become competent in moving about a city; examine stereotypes and question assumptions about difference; and develop a Learning Plan with faculty advisors and field supervisors. top left: Helena Walker, Sarah Martin and

The "Incident"

"We the students of African and African American descent, understand that the content of the hate mail does not reflect the beliefs of all the students on this campus. However, it is clear that some students feel that we do not belong here. This incident is not only a collective attack on us and all students of color, but it is also a threat on one student's life. Nevertheless, we stand unshaken by this cowardly act. In fact, the action has strengthened us as individuals and unified us as a body. Our presence on this campus will remain unchanged we will not be moved."

This letter was a response to the anonymous message of hate attached to one African American student's door one afternoon early in Fall Quarter. The next morning, the victim's bed was set on fire, and many students speculated a connection between the two events.

In response, a campus wide meeting was held on the quad where President James Jones and "K" alum Julius Moore spoke about the seriousness of this issue and how it would be addressed. Several events followed: a breakout session immediately after the campus wide meeting, a candle-light vigil to advocate ethnic diversity and a demonstration at Hicks given by a Western fraternity and others. During most of Fall Quarter, an investigation was conducted to determine the perpetrators of both the message and the fire. This investigation was closed during Winter Quarter due to a lack of evidence. Since the incident the victim has left the college.

Committed to bringing speakers to campus, discussing the concerns of today's medical community as it affects its prospective members, and keeping health sciences fun, the Pre-Med Club combines science and socializing. # STUDENT Activities Committee

SAC

A coordinator and several volunteer students make up the Student Activities Committee which works through the Office of Student Activities to plan, organize, and present major campus events for the students of Kalamazoo College. Faculty and staff members of the College participate in a number of ways as well. Some of the major activities include poster sales, Homecoming Dance and Spirit Week, blood drives, Holiday Bazaar, Exam Week Extravaganza, Monte Carlo, Air Band/Talent Show, Spring Fling, Movie on the Quad, Bahama Boogie and Quadstock. Some of the members of SAC attend a regional conference to select talent to bring to campus for the coming year. Past talent has included comedians, hypnotists, magicians, jugglers, and singers. The Office of Student Activities rents out a sound system or VCR to campus organizations for programming. The office also oversees Club K, a popular spot on Friday night to see and hear student entertainment. Members of SAC are always looking for new ideas and new members. The committee meets once a week during the quarter.

Student Commission

The Student Commission of Kalamazoo College seeks to become a strong and respected voice of and for the students of this campus, and an organization which promotes community and helps to foster an environment which is safe and supportive, both in academics and in community life. In order to accomplish this, Student Commission serves the student body by addressing the needs and concerns of educational and community life, and promotes the interests and general welfare of the student body in the policies and actions that affect us. The Student Commission is made up of the president, finance director, secretary, representatives to standing committees of the College, and intra-campus representatives. These positions provide the students a voice to the students, faculty and administration on all issues that affect the students.

Habitat for Humanity is an international program dedicated to providing homes for low-income families with a local Kalamazoo affiliate. The Kalamazoo College chapter of Habitat for Humanity International actively pursues the involvement of members of the Kalamazoo College community, primarily students, faculty, and staff, in Habitat for Humanity International's mission to eliminate worldwide poverty housing through a hands-on volunteerism. Their area of immediate interests lie in the neighborhoods for the greater Kalamazoo community, however, they did build homes both outside of Michigan and outside of the US this year.

To say Marat Sade is a play about insanity and the French Revolution would belittle it. Marat Sade is insanity and the French Revolution. Oppression and conflict are as vital to the script as the Revolutionary songs and black comedy. [It] is a vivid picture of the late Revolutionary and early Napoleonic eras in France despite the historical aspects, the Brechtian influence of class conflict, and a sense of hope and foreboding throughout.

Matt McConnel (K'00) Dramaturg

Comedy is an art because it requires the performer to draw upon and work within collective sources of humor. Comedy is a science, an equation, as each part of a joke has to add up to the punchline. Comedy is like a score of music, each line has its own precise timing. Comedy is about being in the moment. You had to be there. You had to witness the moment as it happened. It's all in the timing.

Lots of Love,
Dad, Maz, Jace, Shell, Cass & Brownie

From when you were just a wee tiny tot
While 'zoom'ing with Mickey at breakfast so hot
You loved and treasured books heard and read
Especially on the potty before snuggling in bed.

You grew and began to spread your wings
With the confidence to tackle really tough things.
From the couch to the table you liked to chill
As strength and independence made you quite a pill.

Hot short summers void of ice cream cones
Gave way to discovering a new world of phones.
Days were filled with dolls, dance, and friends
As your life became a series of leaps and bends.

So now, dear Feather, you're on another new track
Of more travel, more people, with more skills in your pack.
We wish you good health, happiness and blessings from above
But most of all - our wish for you is love.

Congratulations, Heather! We love you lots.

ALL GOOD THINGS MUST END...

This is your atypical yearbook. As you may have noticed, we substitute pictures for stories. It has been the Boiling Pot's philosophy in the past that pictures say a lot more than words. Thus, we keep our words to a minimum and try to put as many pictures of you in as possible. In knowing this, you may feel cheated because now you may not remember all of the important events that happened in 1998-99. Fear no more...This last page is here to wrap up the year and remind you of those things you might forget happened.

THE YEAR IN A GLANCE

Let's start at the beginning. The largest first-year class entered Kalamazoo College in its history. The Freshman Convocation during Orientation week was held for the first time on the Quad because there were too many people to hold it in the chapel. Marriott took on a new face as their food and appearance changed. Fall quarter, a number of racial incidence injured the school and brought the topic of diversity to the heart of many classroom discussions. Winter quarter came in with a blast. In fact, the school started two days late because of the horrific blizzard that Kalamazoo experienced. With Spring Quarter came the resignation of Registrar Susan Steele.

As for the world outside K's Bubble, hurricanes in Central America totally destroyed entire cities and buried infrastructure. The United States experienced a series of hate crimes against minorities. African-Americans and Gays were especially targeted by many hate groups. Clinton was in the hot seat as the first president ever impeached in United States history. Monica Lewinsky became a household name thanks to Bill and Monica's affair. Two hot air balloonists traveled around the world without stopping. Ethnic cleansing was brought to the nation's attention, thanks to the NATO war against Kosovo during the spring. Children killing children was also unfortunately part of the year in Littleton, Colorado. Two high school students set off a number of bombs and opened fire on their classmates killing 12 students and one teacher. Gun control, internet censoring, and American cultural trends became big issues in Congress thanks to the shooting. Kavorkian was sentenced to jail for euthenasia. The much anticipated prequel to Star Wars hit the movie theater. Need I say more?
