To a great degree, every traditional liberal arts college that seeks to maintain a high academic reputation is faced with the questions raised by the changing times. Certain of the older attitudes toward liberal education may have to be modified if the college is to remain a vital force in modern education. For the most part, the changes at Kalamazoo College have been evolutionary rather than revolutionary. We have retained the good portion of the traditional programs of learning, while adopting new techniques and gaining new facilities. In addition, there has been evident progress and change in student affairs. In this spirit, the yearbook, as the mirror of the academic year, takes as its theme, tradition and change.
The new Upton-Olds complex... was completed this year.

It houses modern laboratory space...

both for the physics student...

and for the chemistry student.

There are frequent thoughtful discussions on religious questions.
The recently acquired Humphrey House...

Both informal parties...

and semi-formal dances are part of a full social program.
Kalamazoo College has a vital need to look beyond its own confines.

This need was sharply defined by an outstanding Chapel speaker, Mr. Alistair Cooke, who, speaking on "The Pleasures and Pains of Anglo-American Understanding," demonstrated that only through an appreciation of the individuality of other cultures will we create Western solidarity and harmony.

This broadening of interest is furthered by student discussions . . .

a more active campus governing body . . .

and a closer relationship between faculty and students.
One cannot write a resume of the year without reliving the experiences we have shared together. Consciously or subconsciously one inevitably asks, "What will 1959-60 mean to you and to this College? How will it be remembered by those who have experienced its mountain tops and its valleys?"

Will anyone ever forget September when we welcomed the largest freshman class in history — and the best ever, of course! Crowded dormitories, bulging at the seams, left memories of inconveniences, much to the embarrassment of the administration. In reality, 1959-60 becomes the year when we felt the first impact of the tidal wave of students soon to flood America's campuses, a situation which Kalamazoo will feel acutely because of our commitment to a small limited enrollment in an era in which national recognition of our work in the sciences, the notoriety from the Tribune survey, and the intriguing foreign study plan have catapulted the College into the limelight. Fortunately, the acquisition of MacKenzie and Humphrey relieved dormitory pressures and moved the College a little closer toward its objective of the "perfect" campus.

The year was likewise a nightmare for the sciences, in which students and faculty waited patiently for a modern Olds Hall, and then concentrated a year's laboratory work in one semester. From sunrise until midnight embryonic scientists struggled to compensate for the lost hours. We trust, however, that the new facilities were worth the patience of the wait.

But the year has written itself upon our minds for more important things than bricks and mortar. All facets of the college family — Trustees, alumni, faculty, and students have been evaluating their roles in the ongoing operation of the College.

For the Student Senate, the year has been a provocative, creative one in which campus leaders devoted laborious hours drafting a new constitution, which promises to strengthen the place of students in administration. Meanwhile, the Judicial Council evolved a clearer definition of its function, and structural changes effected by the Senate brought new concepts for campus activities.

And so, the year 1959-60 will play its part in the ongoing panorama, both through your lives and through soul-searching studies. In fact, the theme of The Boiling Pot, "Tradition Versus Change," becomes meaningful in the backdrop of these evaluations. Thus no theme could have been more timely, nor any more significant. Kalamazoo, proud in its long heritage, has progressed through the steadfast dedication of thousands. From the thinking of the many have come traditions which add meaning to the fellowship. And perhaps the most vital tradition of them all has been the constant search for something better, the belief that our greatest strength is found in the unsatisfied, inquiring mind. It is the restless spirit of the quest which has characterized this College, and this year. May it be a rewarding and satisfying memory.

The Drama Department's third production of the year has been cast. The play, Look Back in Anger which will be the final production of the year, has five parts, each difficult and requiring much time and skill. The male lead, Jimmy Porter, will be played by John Kless. The female lead, Alison Porter, will be played by Marilyn Szpiech. The three supporting roles, Cliff, Helena, and Colonel Redfern will be handled by Regan Smith, Jan Adducci, and Robert Johansen.

The play itself, Look Back in Anger, is in contrast to the two previous productions done here on campus this year. Both The Merry Wives of Windsor and The Madwoman of Chaillot were primarily humorous. Look Back in Anger is bare-naked life. The lead, Jimmy Porter, is an angry young man, the British counterpart of the American Beatnik, "a tousle-haired, dirty-sweatered, violently embittered young tyrant who keeps his devoted wife in an attic hovel, sneers at her mother as an appetizing lump of worm-bait, does her physical violence, betrays her the instant another pair of arms coils about his neck, and stares with cold, blank indifference at the news that their expected child has been born dead. You are asked to believe that two women love this volcano of ceaseless, sputtering venom ..."). In spite of the character of Jimmy, one cannot help empathizing with him during the play.

The author, John Osborne, can also be classified as an angry young man. He has written two other plays which have received rave reviews, The Entertainer and Epitaph for George Dillon. Look Back in Anger may not be deemed amusing or entertaining, but it may be said to be enlightening and enjoyable.
The Kappas and the Centuries chose Marjean Perry's A Trap is a Small Place. The cast, which was composed of Judith Stansfield, Marilyn Szpiech, James Rigterink, and Lona Stockmeyer, was directed by John Kless.

The Euros and Sherwoods gave Oscar Wilde's modern adaptation of Salome. Phyllis Watson was the director. The large cast included Gloria Rink, Nancy Erickson, Lawrence Leffel, and Steve Elder. Salome was played by Janet Adducci.

The winning play was presented by the Sigs and Philos, The Lesson, by Eugene Ionesco, and starred William Vincent as the professor, Anne Houston as the pupil, and Susanna Smith as the housekeeper. Miss Smith also directed the play.

MODEL DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION

Since 1960 is a presidential election year, the students of Kalamazoo held the traditional model convention on Saturday, April 30. The first model convention was held in 1932, and since then, on succeeding presidential election years, the college has held alternate Republican and Democratic conventions. The convention was comparable, as far as possible, to the National Democratic Convention that will be held in Los Angeles in July, 1960. After six exciting ballots, the students chose Adlai Stevenson for the presidential nomination and Lyndon Johnson as his running mate.

THE 1959 KALAMAZOO COLLEGE WOMEN'S FIELD HOCKEY TEAM — Rosemary Luther, Joyce Hashagen, Judith Centa, Judith Cooper, Judith Sterling, Alice Foy, Enid Rankin, Diane Forrester, Carol Kratt, Joycee Buxton, Harriette Finnigan.
For nearly forty years, Professor Thomas Walton has taught mathematics at Kalamazoo College. His breadth of understanding of the subject united with a genial classroom manner have made him known and respected far beyond our campus. This year Professor Walton is retiring, and The Boiling Pot joins with the entire college in wishing him well in his retirement years.

There are many people that contribute to the success of a yearbook who will never receive attention for their part in the work. At this time, I would like to point out several persons that deserve my thanks.

My staff: Diane White, Thomas Kreilick, Kenneth Eckler, and Anita Zeltins.

Miss Maxine Turnage, faculty advisor of the yearbook.

Prof. Lewis Batts, Miss Marilyn Hinkle, and Mr. Harold Kuhlman for the use of the color pictures used in the book.

Mr. Joseph Schiavone, Photographer.

Mr. George Agate and the men of Kalamazoo Litho Plate for their outstanding work on the printing plates.

Mr. Alan Howard, the printer of this book, who contributed a great deal of extra time to make this book a success.

If the yearbook is a good one, these people deserve the praise.

A diamond's value is not determined by size alone

It is only the beginning.

COLOR is very important. The standard is clear white — like a drop of water.

CUT affects brilliance. A diamond cut in proper proportions shows an equal distribution of light at all distances from the eyes. It refracts the rays, which hit the diamond, back through the top.

CLARITY also helps to determine value, although few diamonds are flawless.

CARAT is the unit of weight of a diamond — but important only after Color, Cutting and Clarity.

The valuation of a diamond is a task only for an expert. We take pride in our knowledge and integrity. Come in and select the diamond you want...we'll show you exactly the qualities it possesses.

CONGRATULATIONS GRADUATES

Today the goal you aimed for more than a decade ago is at hand. For most of you this is a fitting climax to years of study and hard work — graduation.

Some of you may choose to continue your formal education, others will go into industry or the business and professional world. But wherever you go and whatever you do, the experience you have had, the knowledge and understanding you have acquired, and the principles you have lived by during the past four years, applied to your new endeavor, will make your life richer and fuller.
