New Job for President Rainsford
Excellence Rewarded
THIS IS YOUR MAGAZINE

This magazine is published for the Kalamazoo College family of alumni, parents, faculty, and friends of the College. It is your magazine. Through this vehicle, we can communicate with each other about events in our lives and share in the rich, living heritage of Kalamazoo College.

As we conclude the Sesquicentennial celebration at Commencement ceremonies this June, and prepare to embark on the College’s next 150 years, this is an appropriate time to reflect on the purpose, format, and content of K Magazine.

This issue of the magazine was deliberately abbreviated in the hope that it will prompt you to think about what this publication should be in the future, and to share your ideas and suggestions with me. What types of articles and features do you most enjoy reading? What has been omitted in the past that should be considered in the future? Do you have a professional or avocational expertise about which you would like to write an article? To what extent does K Magazine successfully reflect the excellence and heritage of Kalamazoo College?

My invitation for your comments is more than a courtesy. This is your magazine. Please take an active role in its future by sending me your ideas and suggestions: Thomas A. Myers, editor, K Magazine, Kalamazoo College, Kalamazoo, Michigan, 49007.

Thomas Andrews Myers was named director of public relations in February. He will serve as editor of K Magazine and oversee production of most other College publications. Thom comes to the College with more than ten years experience as manager of advertising and public relations for Teledyne Vasco, a specialty metals division of Teledyne, Inc. He was instrumental in the recent development of a new alumni magazine for another private, liberal arts college. He received his undergraduate degree from Allegheny College and has done post-graduate studies in communication at Clarion State College.

LYNCHBURG JOB TO RAINSFORD
Dr. George N. Rainsford, president of Kalamazoo College since 1972, has been chosen to become president of Lynchburg College in Virginia. Rainsford was unanimously elected to the presidency by Lynchburg's board of trustees, according to George T. Stewart, chairman of the board. "We were looking for someone with obvious leadership ability who could inspire those around him to their best efforts," said Stewart. "Dr. Rainsford has already had a distinguished career as a college administrator. He is imaginative, eager, and thoroughly committed to the cause of private higher education. We look forward with great enthusiasm to working with him."
Rainsford will remain president of "K" until June 30, when he will begin his duties at Lynchburg. Kalamazoo College has already chosen Rainsford's successor, Dr. David W. Bronsman, who will come as Kalamazoo as president in July.
Lynchburg College is a private, coeducational college affiliated with the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). It offers 43 undergraduate and 23 graduate degree programs, and has approximately 2,300 students.

Hicks, written by Marilyn Hinkle, a 1944 "K" grad and former alumni and public relations director at the College. EXCELLENCE REWARDED
Kalamazoo College has awarded its highest faculty honors, the 1982 Florence J. Lucasse Fellowships, to Richard Stavig and Wayne M. Wright.
Stavig's award recognizes his outstanding classroom teaching. Wright received the Lucasse Fellowship for outstanding achievement in creative work, research, or publication. Each award carries a $1,000 stipend.
Stavig, professor of English, has been with the College since 1955. He was instrumental in forming the College's Foreign Study Program, which he directed for 11 years before returning to classroom teaching in 1974.
In the citation awarded to Stavig, Dr. Howard Roerecke, associate professor of English, noted that "what wins his (Stavig's) students to him is his steadiness, his patient kindness, the respect with which he receives them and their ideas, and, perhaps, a little of his sneaky wry humor. Dick Stavig offers our students a role model of intellectual honesty and dignity."
Wayne Wright, professor of physics, has conducted research in the area of acoustics. His 20 years of on-campus work have been supplemented by study at major research laboratories throughout the country.
"Wayne Wright holds strongly to the conviction that research and teaching are inseparable," says his award citation, prepared by Dr. Laurence Wilson, professor of chemistry. "He believes that the most certain way to insure intellectual growth is to be an active contributor to one's discipline and to regularly submit one's own ideas to the scrutiny and criticism of professional peers."
The annual Lucasse Fellowships pay tribute to Florence J. Lucasse, a 1910 "K" graduate, for her long and distinguished career as a teacher. The fellowships were established in 1979 through an endowment given to the College by Lucasse in her will.

YOUNG CHAIRS ANNUAL FUND
Grant O. Young ('61) is serving as chairman of the 1983 Annual Fund. His efforts began in March with a letter to alumni and friends of the College, outlining the particular and immediate problems in admissions and student financial aid.
Young noted that this year's million-dollar Annual Fund is "an appropriate goal, both in terms of the existing need and its relationship to the $845,000 raised last year."
Funds for student financial aid are needed now to support admissions efforts in attracting the best students to Kalamazoo College. Without those funds, valuable programs at the College may be lost, or significantly curtailed, because of declining enrollment. Young has asked donors to increase their gift to this year's Annual Fund, and to send at least a portion of their pledge during this fiscal year (prior to June 30).
Grant Young is manager of worldwide market planning for the Upjohn Company's Asgrow Vegetable Seed Division. As well as being an alumnus of the College, he is also a parent of a current "K" student.

'EMANCIPATED SPIRITS'
One of the Sesquicentennial projects at Kalamazoo College this year is a book entitled Emancipated Spirits: Portraits of Kalamazoo College Women. The book features biographies of four Kalamazoo College women who broke new trails in their professions and had an important impact on their communities. The four women are Lucinda Hinsdale Stone, head of the female department at "K" from 1843-63 and wife of Kalamazoo College president J. A. B. Stone; Frances Diebold, professor of biology at "K" for 44 years and one of the most popular teachers in the history of the College; Pauline Byrd Johnson ('26), the College's first black student and first black teacher in the Kalamazoo public school system; and Nelda K.
Balch, who almost singlehandedly created the theatre department at Kalamazoo.

Emancipated Spirits was written by Dr. Gail Griffin, assistant professor of English and coordinator of women's studies at "K," and by three Kalamazoo College students—Josephine Csete, Cheryl M. Limer, and Ruth Ann Moerdzyk—whose contributions to the book represent the work they did for the senior individualized projects.

Publication of Emancipated Spirits will be completed in June and it will be available for purchase to alumni and friends of the College.

NEW ALUMNI DIRECTORY

Kalamazoo College is publishing a new alumni directory which will be available for distribution in late 1983. The directory will have three sections which will list all "K" alumni alphabetically, geographically, and by class year.

This will be the College's first alumni directory since 1979. It will include the full name, occupation, business address and telephone number, and home address and telephone number of all Kalamazoo College alumni.

Most alumni of the College should have already received a biographical questionnaire to be completed and returned to the publisher of the directory. It is important to the success of the book that you complete and return these forms as soon as possible. You may also reserve your copy of the directory, in hardcover or paperback, when you return the questionnaire.

The Kalamazoo College alumni directory will be made available only to former "K" students. The book will have a limited printing—only those directories ordered in advance will be printed.

The participation of "K" alumni is vital to the success of this project. When you receive your questionnaire, please fill it out and return it to the publisher of the directory, Carleton Graphics, P.O. Box 4427, South Bend, Indiana, 46634.

CORRECTION

WINTER SPORTS WRAP UP

Men's swimming—It's rumored that the U.S. government is investigating the Kalamazoo College men's swim team because of its unbreakable monopoly on the MIAA championship. Coach Bob Kent's squad won its 12th straight league title this season by winning all of its MIAA dual meets and then placing first at the league championship meet.

Kalamazoo won 11 of the 18 events at the league meet and qualified 14 swimmers for the NCAA Division III national championships. At the nationals in Canton, Ohio, the Hornets as a team finished 10th (tie) and ten "K" swimmers earned All American status. They were Curt Crimmins, Dave Hoisington, Will Oberholtzer, Peter Romano, Joshua Sherbin, Kevin Shugars, Dave Stranquist, Ralph Venen, Jim Walker, and Tom McLean.

Women's swimming—For the third straight year the women's swim team claimed third place in the MIAA race. The Hornet swimmnin' women compiled a dual meet mark of 2-3 but placed a strong second in the league championship meet.

Coach Lyn Maurer had several fine freshmen swimmers this season, including Gloria Granger, who was the MIAA champion in the 50-yard butterfly. Another freshman, Suzy Coykendall, set a College record in the 100-yard individual medley and placed second in the league meet in three other events. Other strong swimmers on the team included sophomores Karen Allen and Linda Casey, junior Nancy Waldenmaier, and senior Claire Bryant.

Men's basketball—With the loss of "K's" all-time leading scorer John Schelske to graduation, many opponents hoped that the Hornet offense this year would wither and die. Not so. Head coach Ray Steffen put together a balanced attack which resulted in four players averaging in double figures and ignited the men's basketball team to an overall 15-7 record, 7-5 in the MIAA. The team tied for third place in the conference.

The main man for the Hornets was sophomore guard Steve Schelske (John's younger brother) who led the team with a 19.3 scoring average. Steve also hit 84.1 percent of his free throws, the second-best mark in the MIAA.

Seniors Mark Koets, Chuck Jager, and Darrell Banks were the other Hornets whose scoring averages reached double figures—12.5, 11.8, and 10.6 points per game, respectively. Junior guard Doug Hentschel lead the team with 5.9 assists per game.

Women's basketball—You might not classify a 5-14 season's record as successful, but the women's basketball team at "K" has good reason to be pleased with that mark this year. The team entered the season with a 49-game losing streak, but finally broke it with a victory over Nazareth College. The Hornets won four more games from non-league teams, but couldn't find a winning formula against its MIAA opponents, finishing 0-12 in the conference.

Coach Terri Beattie's squad was led by sophomore guard Anne Kullenberg, who averaged 15.4 points a game. Freshman Jerry Allen averaged seven points and 4.7 rebounds a game. Another freshman, Melinda Brady, chipped in with a 6.1 scoring average and senior Kathy LePard contributed 5.5 points and 4.5 rebounds per game.

Wrestling—With only four men on the wrestling squad this year, the Hornet grapplers were forced to drop all of their dual meets and compete in multi-team invitational events only. The team was led by senior Dayl Stout, last year's MIAA champion in the 134-pound division. Stout placed first, second, third (twice), and fourth at five invitational meets. Other wrestlers for coach Terry St. Louis were freshman Scott Ziebarth, sophomore Joe Saval, and senior Dan Burk.
