A. E. Thomas was born in the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts, and was graduated from Brown University with the class of 1894. The following year he was an instructor in English at Brown, while securing his Master's degree. He then took up newspaper work in New York City, laboring in that interesting if not always remunerative vineyard for fifteen years before "Her Husband's Wife", his first play to reach the professional stage, was produced.

The play was accepted by Henry Miller, who produced it at the Broad Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on February 14, 1910, with Robert Warrick and Lara Hope Crews in the cast. On May 9th of the same year it was brought to the Garrick Theatre in New York where it ran into the summer. There was a subsequent autumn season on the road.
